BiancaMed wins award

Conor Heneghan, the co-founder of health monitoring firm BiancaMed, has won University College Dublin's NovaUCD 2006 Innovation Award. The award recognises Heneghan's commercialisation of research at UCD's school of electrical, electronic and mechanical engineering. Heneghan is the named inventor on four UCD patent applications and co-founded BiancaMed in 2002 with Philip de Chazal. The firm is targeting the home-health sector.
